Re: Ice throw from wind turbine blades:

Dear Mathew,

This letter is to advise you that to the best of my knowledge, there have been no general liability claims or injuries as a result of ice being thrown from a wind turbine blade.

As you know, we have been Corporate Members of the American Wind Energy Association (AWEA) for twenty (20) years and have been insuring developers and their projects the entire time. This issue has never come up from our insurance underwriters in the US.

In addition, this question came up a year or so ago and at that time, I contacted my CNA underwriter located in Denmark, and he confirmed that in his twenty five years underwriting wind energy business in Europe, damage from ice was never a concern from a general liability standpoint.

Let me know if anything else is needed.

Best regards,

Bob Fox
