America's growing economy

Wind power is an essential element of the climate change solution. This inexhaustible domestic resource produces no emissions, uses no fuel and consumes no natural resources – an environmentally smart way to help America meet our growing demand for electricity. It's one more reason Congress should support policies, such as the Production Tax Credit and Renewables Portfolio Standard, that allow us to enhance America's energy security while protecting our environment.

Wind: Powering a cleaner, stronger America.
